RAZ INTERIORS HAS been devoted to supplying a comprehensive residential, retail and commercial design service since 2013, using the experience of its founding group of interior designers and project managers.

Their project at Park Avenue occupies the highest storey of the estate, with high ceilings and a glass wall looking over the city. The clients were a couple and their 15-year-old son, looking for a shared space for different purposes, including a living area, quiet study and a piano room.

The design uses simple background tones – white lime washes and light grey walls that contrast with sleek black furniture. Doors are concealed in feature walls to create a seamless flow. Unnecessary partitions from the original layout were removed to create a more open layout, allowing light to flood the rooms; multiple movable partitions permit separation when needed. A particular emphasis was placed on increasing the usable floor area by creating verticality – with the very high ceilings, multi-level platforms could be created, generating more space and allowing additional storage.

The master bedroom is warmly welcoming, with wooden textures and an ingenious raised platform under the bed concealing storage. Private living zones use more saturated, darker colouration, while the son’s room incorporates his preferred turquoise shades. Wooden furniture, linen upholstery and custom-made furnishings maintain an air of the natural world without deviating from a modern style. The final design combines sophistication with comfort, homeliness and clean, engaging lines.
